Remember, if you are involved in an accident that requires medical attention, your first phone call should be to 9-1-1.

Be Ready for Whatever Comes Your Way

You never know when an accident may happen, but you can be prepared by knowing what to do after it happens. Knowing answers to even the most obvious questions such as where to get your vehicle repaired can aid in this stressful time.

What to Do When Involved in an Accident

The first thing you should determine is if anyone is seriously injured. If someone is hurt, call 911 immediately and wait for a paramedic to arrive. It may be a good idea to call the local police so there is an official report of the accident.

Who to Call When Your Car Is No Longer Operational

Toyota Certified Collision Center associates are trained to handle not only your repairs, but also assist you with your paperwork, communicate with your insurance company and ensure you get the answers you need.

Know Where to Take Your Car for Repair

It is helpful to know ahead of time where to take your vehicle for collision repair, and you have a choice when it comes to repairing your vehicle. Come to a Toyota Certified Collision Center, complete with state-of-the-art equipment and expert technicians who are Toyota specialists.
